

Client: Top Discount Grocery Retailer

Campaign Objectives:

- Drive people into store to take advantage of the Christmas offers

Target Audience: All readers

Campaign Dates: Sunday 19th December 2010

Research Dates: Mon 20th – Fri 24th December 2010

Additional Comment: Worth noting that the advert and questionnaire were run at a time of extreme weather and snow in the UK. Although strong results, we would expect even better results when access to the shops is easier.

Execution:

- A colour page advert in The Mail on Sunday front half showing Christmas food and drink related promotions.
- Clear money off and low price offers under the tag line of “With prices like these, why shop elsewhere this Christmas”.

Campaign Results...

The campaign was extremely successful in raising awareness, driving footfall on the day and the following week and enhancing key brand metrics for the discount retailer...

Awareness:

- Spontaneous advertising awareness for the retailer was 16% whilst prompted awareness was 62% - almost 3m readers. This is a very impressive recall figure and it is likely that the relevance of the creative caught people's attention.

Call to action:

- Exposure to the advert increased the number of readers shopping or considering shopping at the store. 55% of non-considerers recall seeing the advert, 33% said they would now consider buying products from this retailer – 566,280 readers
- The advert drove readers into the store on Sunday. 118,050 visited as a result of seeing the advert. A further 115,200 readers that saw the advert stated they would have visited a store if they hadn't been prevented by the bad weather
- Compared to those not exposed to the advert, those that were exposed were 167% more likely to have shopped or plan to shop the following week. That's 289,500 additional readers driven into store the week following the Sunday advert

Brand attributes:

- The Christmas food and drink offers really cut through and improved perceptions of the retailer:
- Great value for money – 16% higher at 79% for readers exposed compared to those not exposed
- Low prices – 13% higher at 72% among readers exposed to the advert compared to those not exposed
- Great offers/promotions – 47% higher at 47% for readers exposed compared to not exposed
- Fresh produce – 133% higher at 42% among readers exposed
- High quality – 100% higher at 28% for readers exposed compared to those not exposed
- Great service – 111% higher at 19% for readers exposed compared to those not exposed

Impact:

- 67% state they are more aware of the offers and promotions available from the retailer
- 61% state they are more aware of the range of products available
- 58% said seeing the advert prompted them to think about/consider the discount retailer
- 49% have a more positive impression of the store

